Surely You Don't Want To Clean Your Carpets With Baking Soda, With Vinegar And With Ammonia....

They tell me that the above concoction really works. Mind you, its hard work sponging a whole room they say. But people actually swear by the concoction. There are however a few negative comments about the above carpet cleaning method. But that doesn't stop people from investing time and effort into it and using it to clean their carpets.

One lady I found teaching the method on Youtube, she suggested adding Essential Oils to the bicarbonate soda so carpets smell really fresh and nice.

Another lady was concerned about her cats. Cats are known to be repelled by peppermint and peppermint was one of the essential oils suggested in the DIY Carpet Cleaning video.

Peppermint gives rooms that Christmassy Fragrance apparently.

It's great for removing pet odours one comment suggested. And if you add a little dishwashing liquid into the mix of products you get even better results.

But another lady was concerned about her children and pets playing on the carpet after it has been cleaned with ammonia. While a gentleman wanted to know if the concoction can be used in his Bissell Carpet Cleaning Machine.

Quite rightly so, because a concoction such as *Bicarbonate soda, *Essential oils, *Vinegar, *Ammonia and *Dish washing soap, surely all of that needs to be lifted and washed out of the carpet before it dries. Even a professional carpet cleaner commented, he said that he too uses this concoction in the carpet cleaner machine. He said that it reduces time while cleaning as the average diy cleaner would need sponges to clean carpets with -- and this makes it hard work if a whole room is being cleaned.

The overall advantages and disadvantages of this system for diy carpet cleaning showed that some people were very eager to try this method because it's so cheap. While others insisted that with pets and children around the house, they wouldn't even consider it.

One lady said that she suffers from Asthma and that the carbonated soda would only aggravate her problems, let alone what effect the Ammonia may have!

Use This System Every time instead. Just 0.50p Per Room. Plus Your Hire Machine Costs.

If you want, like so many other people, to get a really good carpet cleaning system that works. One that you can use every time. You won't go far wrong with a proper system the same as what the pro's use. But hiring a carpet cleaner machine from your local machine hire shop probably won't be enough.

If you want a result that really does look fantastic. You need a few simple tools, like a

1. Pre-spray solution.
2. A carpet brush for agitating the pre-spray
3. and lastly you need a rinsing solution in the machine in order to neutralize carpet PH and thus preventing re-soiling problems,.

Once You've Got The Few Tools And Solutions, They Are Yours To Keep.

It costs just pennies from then on to clean your carpets apart from the additional cost of the hire machine. Just a few tools and a couple of solutions will give you a system for cleaning your carpets that you can use over and over again for decades.

Everyone seems to agree with the fact that DIY carpet cleaning is a no no! Most People accept that professional carpet cleaning is the best. But I say that you can clean your own carpets really well and cheaply too.
